DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

"Leather-like" in the preamble is unclear. The specification gives various qualities of leather that are desirable. It is unclear which, if any of these properties is embraced by the term "leather-like".

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Guenther et al. (U.S. 6,024,661) in view of Okawa et al. (JP-A 06-264369).

Art Unit: 1772

Guenther et al. teaches a pebbled synthetic leather surface with micron sized pores in the sides on the pebbles in order to allow moisture permeability in a basketball surface (abstract). Okawa et al. teach a process of forming an embossed synthetic leather surface with pores in the convex portions of the embossed surface (English abstract). The instant invention claims a synthetic surface with micropores on the surface on convex embossments. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill of the art to have formed pores on the convex portions instead of the concave portions of the surface of Guenther et al. in order to form an alternate type of pore and embossment structure on a leather substrate because of the teachings of Okawa et al.
